

Code 3 Retrievers

We are very proud of our line of retrievers and would like to see them all live up to their potential as outstanding gundogs. In keeping with this philosophy we offer several discounts that are intended to help you train your dog or find someone to do it for you.

There are only four ways to affect the ultimate performance of a gundog.

1. Genetics
2. Nutrition
3. Socialization
4. Training

Genetics is our responsibility. As a breeder there should be two overriding factors in having a litter of puppies. First, to better the breed. Second, to better the individual line. We feel all of our breedings meet these two goals.

Nutrition – We will start your pups out with the highest quality puppy food available. It will be up to you whether to continue with a high performance feed. Please remember that our dogs are performance dogs and as such they require higher caloric intake and a balanced dog food. We currently feed Pro plan large breed puppy and lamb and rice to our adult dogs but there are almost identical foods on the market at about half the price such as Exceed, available at Sam's club.

Socialization – It is important to expose your dog to as many sights, smells and sounds as possible to encourage them to be bold and confident in their surroundings.

Training – training is the icing on the cake. A dog that has excellent genetics, nutrition, socialization and proper training is a joy to be around. In the field they are hard working and eager to please and in the house they are just as eager to lie at your feet.
